“ Maybe this was when I was 40ish and had been to see daddy ( being ill at that time). Uncle James happened to be at my parent’s also. I was ready to leave Albertville and head back to my home in Knoxville. However, something was wrong with my car and it wouldn’t crank. Uncle James was quick to come inspect it and knew what to try ( he was a very good mechanic). In just a few minutes he had corrected something and it cranked; I noticed bruises on his arms after that and asked him what happened. He replied something like “My skin is old— it just does that—no problem.” But I knew it had happened when he crammed his arms down inside that car motor. I felt badly, but he kept assuring me it was nothing. My self- less , helpful, sweet Uncle James. By Sherrie Cochran Rumbolt.
