“ My Mom was a single parent for a good part of my growing up. Back then, most people weren't divorced, but Mom went on and faced diversity with dignity and grace. She taught us to do the same. She worked hard to support us (4 kids at one point) and it seemed she was still there for us. My Mom taught me how to Love myself, how to be independent, and how to hold my head up high through any circumstances. She also taught me no one was better than me and I was no better than anyone else, but not to let people run over you. She taught me how to deal with life on life's terms. She was smart, confident and never gave up. She was a winner!
