“ Jo was tied with her sister Cheri as my best friends since I was 15 years old, in 1966. The three of us called each other “sister,” and though it wasn’t a biological truth, it was an emotional fact. I’ve met a lot of people with various degrees, but Jo and Cheri, as well as their mother, Elizabeth, whom I dearly loved, were among the wisest people I’ve known. My heart and prayers are for her family. I’m deeply sad and will miss Jo, but I feel especially blessed that she was in my life at all. And I’m happy for Jo, whose whole life was filled with suffering and heartaches. Those are all turned into everlasting joy now. I love you dearly, Sister!
